

What a great place!

“I look forward to coming to work, and I consider myself really fortunate to feel that way.”

This sentiment is from Tricia Nissen, lead writer at Goff & Howard, who is clearly not alone in her enthusiasm. For the second time, the Minneapolis/St. Paul Business Journal has distinguished Goff & Howard as one of the Twin Cities’ Best Places to Work.

Goff & Howard is known for its team approach to helping one another and serving our clients. We also enjoy fun bowling outings, a lively Secret Santa competition, and coming together to give school supplies and holiday gifts to families in need.

“It’s very rewarding to be part of such a cohesive group. This makes for an upbeat workplace where everyone takes pride in doing great work for our clients,” said Heidi Larson, public relations account manager.

All 2008 Best Places to Work winners were announced in the August 15 edition of the Minneapolis/St. Paul Business Journal. The publication selected winners based on their employee-friendly work environments, positive attitudes toward embracing new ideas, and other aspects of employee satisfaction.
